

FALMAN CHARGED WITH ILLEGAL DEATH OF WOMAN

PROGRAM OF STYLE SHOW PROMISES IT WILL BE BEST EVER

Dixon Merchants to Outdo Themselves in Big Spring Exhibit

All plans have been completed for Dixon's Spring Style show to be held in the Dixon Theater on next Monday and Tuesday, March 30 and 31st. Never before have such elaborate plans been made for a style show and the rehearsal held Monday evening, there will be many outstanding features. A complete display of dresses, coats, ensembles, shoes, millinery and furniture, together with other attractions, will make this year's style show more complete and interesting than those of the past.

There is not a person living who does not like to see beautiful clothes and at the style show the public will have an opportunity to see the latest of fashions. All of the garments will be shown on beautiful living models. Everything that is shown in Dixon's style show is taken from the various stores and all things are carried in stock. Nothing is brought in for the style show and then returned after the show is over, but it should be understood that the merchants only show what they actually carry in stock and can be purchased from them at any time during the season. Seasonable merchandise can be purchased in Dixon on just the same as it can be purchased in any town.

Have Feature Picture. The feature picture, "The Dressmaker from Paris," featuring Leatrice Joy, and Ernest Torrence and the fourteen international beauty models will be one of the outstanding pictures shown at the Dixon Theater this year. This picture is a style show by itself, but carries a big comedy love story, laid in Paris and a town in the American West. Not a dull moment during the entire showing of this great picture. Everyone of the fourteen international beauty models, who were picked by famous judges as fourteen of the most beautiful women in America, play a real important part and show the very latest fashions for women.

Program for Show. The doors of the theater will open at 6 o'clock and the curtain will go promptly at 7 o'clock and the following schedule will be carried out to the minute: 7:00 to 7:05 Overture—Dixon Theater Orchestra. 7:05 to 8:25 Feature Picture, "The Dressmaker from Paris." 8:25 to 8:40 First Scene, Style Show. 8:40 to 8:45 Comedy skits, "Laffin' Off," accompanied by Wm. Worley on the organ. 8:45 to 8:55 News Reel. 8:55 to 9:10 Second Scene, Style Show. 9:10 to 10:30 Feature Picture, "The Dressmaker from Paris." The complete program giving all details will be announced through the columns of The Telegraph Monday.

Sensations Promised in American Woman's Suit

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Paris, Mar. 28.—A woman who has been charged with breach of promise and defamation of character against Lieutenant Colonel Ian Dennistoun, has created a great deal of interest in the world of Paris. Colonel Dennistoun, now the husband of Dowager Countess Carnarvon, was the defendant in the sensational London trial just concluded, in which his former wife sued for the recovery of money loaned before their Paris divorce. The American woman who proposes to sue the British officer was mentioned several times in the evidence at the London trial, but these references were made so discreetly that there was nothing to indicate her identity and her name is said to have been revealed only to the judge and counsel.

Watch Progress of Scarf Pin Through Babe's Body

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Detroit, Mich., Mar. 28.—The progress of a scarf pin through the body of a two and a half year old child is being watched by hospital physicians using a fluoroscope, an instrument that will show foreign objects in the body. The boy, Lawrence George, swallowed the pin Feb. 25. Dr. Gerapy, chief surgeon at the hospital said today, the pin passed gradually from the throat to the stomach. Then it went through the upper intestine and now is in the lower intestine. The child is out of danger and we are hoping that the pin will be eliminated naturally, and an operation avoided.

Blinded by Operation Man Dies in Fire in Hospital

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Chicago, Mar. 28.—Temporarily blinded by an operation on his eye, J. J. Regan was unable to grope his way to safety and died in the suffocating smoke of a fire which last night wrecked the 4th floor of the Chicago Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Hospital in the downtown business district.

Nurses and firemen carried out other patients, made helpless by bandages or effects of operations when a blaze in the basement spread through an elevator shaft. Several persons had narrow escapes.

Hall is Now Convict No. 9,721; England is Given No. 9,270 Friday

Robert J. Hall, bigamist and Robert England, auto thief, started serving their sentences in the new penitentiary yesterday afternoon when they were turned over to the penitentiary officers at 4 o'clock. England was the first to be registered in the penitentiary docket and is prisoner number 9,720, while Hall is 9,721. Both men will spend their first 24 hours in the new prison in the building specially constructed for solitary confinement, and then will be assigned to their cell houses and start on their prison duties.

Both of the prisoners were anxious to start serving their terms and were even more satisfied when they learned that they were to be sent to the new penitentiary at Stateville and not to the Joliet institution.

William Phalen, War Veteran, Answers Taps

The sad news of the death of William Phalen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Phalen, who had lived here practically all his life, was received late yesterday afternoon. Mr. Phalen passed away at his home in Chicago Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock, death resulting from an attack of pneumonia. He was taken ill about a week ago and appeared to be well on the road to rapid recovery when he suffered a relapse Thursday evening and death ended his sufferings.

William Phalen was well known in Dixon and was for several years during his early youth a carrier of the Evening Telegraph force. His warm personality won him a host of friends who join with the bereaved family in mourning his sudden and early demise. Besides his wife, he is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Phalen of this city and one sister, Miss Anna Phalen, at home. The remains arrived in Dixon at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

Funeral services will be held at the home of his parents, 115 E. Eighth street, at 9 o'clock Monday morning and at St. Patrick's Catholic church at 9:30, with burial in Oakwood.

Twins Died Mysteriously: Coroner's Probe Started

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Peoria, Ill., Mar. 28.—The mysterious sudden death of Lawrence and Florence Nell, twins, who were nine months old yesterday, and who died a few hours apart today will be investigated by Coroner W. E. Elliott, he announced this morning. The twins had not been so healthy but had not been ill. The mother noticed them playing together in their crib when suddenly the girl was taken ill. The boy was stricken a half hour later and both died before medical aid arrived. The physician was unable to explain their sudden death.

Sanitary District to Sell Property for Sewage Plants

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Chicago, Mar. 28.—Property owned by the Chicago sanitary district in Cook, DuPage and Will counties valued at from forty to fifty million dollars may be disposed of soon to raise funds to acquire sites for sewage disposal plants. It has become known that a particular effort is being made to dispose of the 9,345 acres of vacant property which it owns, but trustees said it would be the policy to sell any idle property if a reasonable offer was made.

Playing before one of the largest crowds that has ever attended a high school production in Dixon, the members of the South Side Junior Class presented the three act play "His Uncle's Niece" in a most entertaining manner, Friday evening. Every one of the characters played up to his part with ability seldom found in high school productions and great credit is due to Miss Virginia Fay White, Junior Class Advisor, who by her untiring efforts made this possible.

The opening scene found Richard Tate, a promising young lawyer (Niel Reagan) and Francis Felton (Charles Keyes) discussing their financial possibilities. As the plot develops we find that Francis has been made the sole heir of his Uncle Simon, who supposing him to be a girl has promised him one million dollars if he will marry the man of his uncle's choice. Francis receives a letter from his uncle announcing that the wedding is to take place in a very short time. Francis is at the point of giving up the deception when Richard proposes a solution to the problem. Securing the money, Francis decides to marry the girl. The proper clothing he manages to dress Francis as a very becoming young lady, and presents him to Uncle Simon. (George O'Malley) and Philander Filmore (Daniel Nagle) who is the future husband, as the heiress, Uncle Simon's fortune. Things move smoothly as the wedding day approaches, except that Uncle Simon develops a dislike for Richard who poses as the man servant of Francis. This culminates in Uncle Simon having Richard arrested for bigamy.

The day of the wedding finds Francis almost at the end of the rope; however the quick witted Richard secures his release from jail and with the help of his friends, Haye, Reinhold Kerst and the town marshal, Anna Sackelmoore, (Gus Bondi) he kidnaps Filmore and substituted Dora Hale, (Vera Mae Poole), in his place. He goes before Uncle Simon as the minister husband of Mrs. Sarah Ann Mullen, (Rachel Nagle), the cook at Uncle Simon's country home. Of course Uncle Simon then discovers that Francis is a boy, but he settles the matter by declaring that he had always wanted a nephew.

All Took Parts Well. Niel Reagan as Richard Tate was a typical young lawyer, always ready to grasp an opportunity. Charles Keyes played the part of Francis Felton with cleverness in the interpretation of the role perfectly. Mae Poole as Dora Hale, the charming fiancée of Francis, while Elsie Richardson as Alice Malcom, the fiancée of Richard Tate, was a perfect foil for her part. Anna Mullen fitted into her part perfectly and added touches of comedy to the performance. Daniel Nagle as Philander Filmore made a wonderful villain. Timothy Haye as Reinhold Kerst, the town marshal, was a typical small town policeman. Music was furnished by the high school orchestra under the direction of Miss Bertha Bennett. A group of five Junior boys provided amusements between the acts by rendering a number of popular songs.

The Junior class is to be congratulated in the way they handled the production as it was really a credit to the school.

Lee Center Schools are Praised by State Officer

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Lee Center, Mar. 28.—Lee Center's school system was praised very highly yesterday when Charles W. Knudsen, inspector of schools from the University of Illinois and the state Department of Public Instruction, concluded his visit here. Mr. Knudsen praised the high school structure and equipment and assured the directors that the school will continue to be recognized by the university as a four year course.

In his inspection of the grade school, the visitor complimented the directors on the high grade of equipment, the efficient corps of instructors and declared the Lee Center school system to be one of the best in the state of Illinois for a town of this size.

Wales Off from Britain for South America Trip

By Associated Press Leased Wire. London, Mar. 28.—The Prince of Wales left for Portsmouth on the royal train this morning to embark on the battle cruiser Repulse for South Africa and South America. Crowds cheered the Prince all the way to the Victoria station shouting "safe voyage and safe return." Many distinguished persons were at the station to pay their respects and wish the royal traveler good luck.

Not Warned of Fleet Sinking: Five German Sailors Died in Sea

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Scapa Flow, Orkney Islands, March 28.—Workmen engaged in breaking up a scuttled German destroyer beached in Mill Bay, have discovered under a mass of wood the bodies of five German officers and sailors who evidently were not warned at the time the fleet was sunk by the German crews.

The surrendered German fleet including 11 battleships, 5 battle cruisers, 6 light cruisers and auxiliary craft, was scuttled by the German crews on June 21, 1919 two days after signing the naval conditions of the peace treaty.

ILLINOIS' FUNDS TO STORM VICTIMS NOT FOR RED CROSS

Committee From General Assembly on Ground to Direct Use

By Associated Press Leased Wire. West Frankfort, Ill., Mar. 28.—The legislative committee of the Illinois assembly which is handling the state aid funds conferred with public officials and committees here today on storm relief measures. Mayor Bagley, Frank Traubach, Walter Crawford and Lon Fox, the latter being president of sub-district number 6 of the United Mine Workers of America, were among those who conferred with the state officials.

The legislative committee will proceed to White and other counties to the west, where storm damage is largely confined to the rural and farm lands.

Can't Be Given to Red Cross. Members of the committee said, according to provisions of the bill appropriating $500,000 to tornado relief, none of the funds can be turned over to the Red Cross or any other organization. Reports that the funds will be used to replace house buildings, were denied by the legislators, who declined to comment how the funds would be divided.

Disposition of funds will be arranged at a Springfield conference after the state of the storm's path has been completed.

Money will first be used, Senator Robins said, in payment of any obligations incurred by state relief agencies and welfare workers in the emergency period. This will include additional expenses in mobilizing state agencies, aside from provisions in regular appropriations.

To Hold Conference. According to an announcement by Senator R. R. Meents, chairman of the legislative committee, there will be a conference at Springfield next Tuesday evening, between the committee, Governor Small and Henry M. Baker, national director of the Red Cross disaster relief. This conference is expected to evolve a general plan of action concerning the disbursement of the $500,000 appropriated by the Illinois assembly for the aid of storm sufferers.

Judge Jenkins, director of the Department of Public Welfare, now is in the field with fifty child welfare workers. They are making surveys to determine what can be done for orphans and crippled children of the storm.

The deaths of Mrs. John Oakes and Eustasia Bozewich, 15 months old daughter of Tony Bozewich, who was killed in the storm, brings the county death toll to 183. Of this number 135 were in West Frankfort.

Troops Leave Sunday. Troops are to leave here tomorrow. A baby buried last Monday by Jerry Sullivan, after he had identified it as his own, was exhumed and positively identified as Bertha Barnes, daughter of Henry Barnes. The body was taken up after the Sullivan child was found in the home of neighbors.

Mrs. Minnie Smith, representative of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid Society, reports 90 children, mostly orphans, have been placed temporarily in homes of the county.

Iowa Gasoline Tax Will be Effective in 30 Days

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Des Moines, Iowa, March 28.—Automobile owners in Iowa must pay a two cents tax per gallon on gasoline within thirty days, as a result of approval yesterday by the House of Representatives of the gas tax bill, already passed by the Senate. Governor Hammill has announced he approves the measure which becomes effective on publication. The tax contemplates a $1,750,000 annual revenue to be divided equally among primary, secondary and township roads.

Senator Wheeler Filed Bonds in Court Today

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Washington, Mar. 28.—Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, indicted here yesterday on conspiracy charge in connection with oil land permits, appeared in District of Columbia Supreme Court today and furnished $1,000 bail through a bonding company.

DOWNING LETS CONTRACT FOR NEW BUILDING

Fine $40,000 Structure to Replace One Destroyed by Fire

George J. Downing this morning announced the letting of the contract for a new $40,000 fire proof building on the lot on which formerly stood his building which was destroyed by fire Christmas morning. The contract was awarded to Mark D. Smith & Sons of this city and work is to start at once. The plans call for a two-story building with basement extending the full length. The structure is to be reinforced concrete and steel with a Redford stone and pressed brick front. The basement will be constructed to accommodate sales rooms and economy; the first floor being used for wearing apparel and dry goods.

Rochester Team Surprises Yankees in Over Time Game

By Associated Press Leased Wire. New York, Mar. 28.—Long range artillery in the Yankees lineup that has been conspicuously effective on major league diamonds, was silenced yesterday at Savannah, Ga., by minor league pitching in a game with the Rochester Internationals and it fell to the lot of the newly installed regular, Earl Combs, to save the Yankees from defeat. The home run in the ninth with one on tied the score at 4-4 and the game was called in the 11th. The Brooklyn Dodgers who left their training camp in Jacksonville, Fla., will resume a series with the Huggins cohorts today at Clearwater. Manager Robinson took a squad of 41 players, 4 catchers, 8 infielders and 5 outfielders. This outfit will be augmented at Birmingham, Monday. It is expected by Pitchers Grimes and Deatour.

Maranville to Rejoin Cubs in About 5 Weeks

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Chicago, Mar. 28.—"Rabbit" Maranville, star shortstop of the Chicago Cubs, who broke a small bone in his right ankle in sliding into 3rd base during a game on the coast against the Los Angeles Pacific Coast League club, will be back in the lineup in about 5 weeks. President Veeck said today on his return from the coast. Maranville, upon his arrival here April 9, will be placed in charge of a local physician who will remove the cast from his leg. An x-ray will be taken and if the injury is not serious, the injured member will not be recast. Physicians who examined the x-ray pictures of the player's ankle declared that the coast doctor who handled the case had done an excellent job. President Veeck said that Maranville probably will fill a role on the coaching line, finding his morale aid to the club, while waiting recovery.

Argentine Says Churches of U. S. Should Agree

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Montevideo, Uruguay, Mar. 28.—A frank statement that churches in the United States ought to settle their differences, has been heard by delegates from the United States to the Christian Work Congress here. In a speech yesterday Dr. Julio Monzo, Argentine publicist, said that since the delegates came to South America to solve "our problems" he hoped they would not take it amiss if he referred to the present attitude of the churches in the North American churches ought to bury their different creeds, their quarrels over modernism and fundamentalism, Dr. Monzo said it was vain to try "either to protestantize or anglicize Latin America."

Lady Luck Hands Cubs Another Stiff Wallop

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Chicago, Mar. 28.—Calamity, which struck the Chicago Cubs two weeks ago when Rabbit Maranville broke an ankle, has scored off the mound today. Denver Grigsby, intended as a regular center fielder, broke his collar bone. He will not be able to play until the middle of May. The calamity occurred when Grigsby tried to spear a long drive in the second inning of the Cubs' 5-4 victory over the Vernon club. Nemesis also overtook the White Sox in their Shreveport camp. Joubert Davenport, prominent in practice pitching, strained a ligament in his left shoulder during the game between squads of Manager Collins and Harry Hooper. He may be out until the middle of next week.

Frederic Ball Member Mount Morris Glee Club

Frederic Ball, who spent the night in Dixon and left this morning, was with the other members of the Mt. Morris College Glee Club for a two weeks concert tour. The club will sing at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Sunday morning and at Waterloo, Sunday evening, continuing their journey west from there.

Waterlogged Boat Made Oxford Quite Race Today

Putney, Eng., Mar. 28.—By The Associated Press.—Oxford took the boat race with Cambridge this afternoon, the dark blue boat becoming waterlogged.

EXPERTS REPORT BONES IN WRECK WERE OF A HUMAN

Stephenson Coroner is Vindicated by N. W. University Men

That the charred bones discovered after the interurban wreck at Ridott on February 22 were those of a human being, is revealed in a report submitted by expert pathologists of Northwestern university, Evanston, and made public Friday by Coroner Edward A. Distelmeyer, of Freeport.

The expert testimony vindicates the Stephenson county official in a theory he has maintained from the start, despite repeated assertions by officials of the interurban company that a check of the passenger lists resulted in accounting for all persons on both trains.

To Call New Jury. The pathologists' report will necessitate the calling of a new jury in addition to that summoned to investigate the death of Glenn S. Chapman, interurban motorist, who was instantly killed in the crash. The Chapman jury has not yet made its report.

The Northwestern pathologist also identified the human bones discovered as part of a liver, rather than a brain, as was first reported. Microscopic analysis convinced the pathologists that part of the bones were portions of a spine. By complete was the examination that the experts were able to distinguish indications of a tubercular condition in the spinal column, which, evidently had responded to treatment.

Substance of Report. The complete report follows: "Dr. E. A. Distelmeyer, of Freeport, Illinois, coroner of Stephenson county, presented to Northwestern certain specimens of bones and other materials which he desired to have identified as to their origin. These bones were thoroughly calcined and showed evidence of having had all of the organic matter burned out of them. The pieces of bone were as follows:

Two pieces of pelvic bone, one of these showing a part of the surface of the sacro-lumbar synchondrosis, the other being a part of the public portion of the pelvic bone. On comparison with the bone of the human pelvis, it is found that these fragments resemble very closely in shape and size the corresponding parts of the human pelvic bone.

Two pieces of femur or thigh bone, one of these including a part of the head of the femur, the medial part of the shaft down to the lesser trochanter. The second piece of thigh bone is a part of the upper end of the shaft. Both of these fragments are found on comparison with the corresponding bone in the human subject to resemble the human femur in all essential respects.

Two small pieces of bone with smooth rounded surface and resembling a portion of the head of either a humerus upper arm bone or femur thigh bone.

A small piece of bone, easily identified as the articular surface (glenoid process) of a human left shoulder blade.

Bones Part of Spine. "The pathologist examined All of these pieces include vertebrae. All of these pieces include vertebrae. On some of them a small portion of one or both transverse process is present. Two of these vertebrae resemble very closely those of the neck. One is larger and shows the facets to which ribs were articulated. Three others are larger and devoid of articular facets. Two other large vertebrae with articular facets are firmly united together by a bridge of bone. The body of one of these vertebrae had partially given away and must certainly have caused a slight backward angulation of the spine. These two vertebrae resemble in all essential respects human vertebrae which are the site of a healed tuberculosis of the spine.

Liver Identified. "In addition to these fragments of bone, there was a blackened mass, somewhat larger than two fists, thoroughly charred on the outside and firm and rather dry in its interior. This mass resembled in its general shape and appearance a liver which had been thoroughly cooked and even partially burned up, leaving only the central portion hard and dry but not burned. Microscopic examination of sections of the central portion of this mass and comparing them with the sections of human organs and structures, it is our opinion that these bones are human bones, and the liver is human liver."

Sacred Island Found in Vera Cruz State, Mexico

By Associated Press Leased Wire. New Orleans, La., Mar. 28.—Discovery of a sacred island containing ruins of the ancient Maya Indian civilization in Lake Catemaco in the Mexican state of Vera Cruz has been made by the exploring expedition of the department of middle American research of Tulane university. A brief report from the explorers told of other discoveries of importance to archaeologists. In addition to the sacred island the explorers also found ruins and important stone slabs of Piedra Labrada and named Mount San Martin and found a large stone idol on the rim of an extinct crater. They are also making ethnographic and linguistic corrections.

Omaha "Enoch Arden" Solves Tangle When He Commits Suicide

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Omaha, Neb., Mar. 28.—John W. Wilson, 45, who on March 7 last found himself in "Enoch Arden" tangle when his first wife, missing 11 years and whom he believed dead, came back, only after he had been remarried for six years, ended all marital troubles here last night by committing suicide. A newspaper clipping related the strange tangle and was verified by court records at Lincoln, Neb. The clipping told how Wilson's first wife deserted him in 1908, leaving her dead, he remarried in 1919. Last February, however, the missing wife returned and his second wife sued for divorce. Attempts at reconciliation with his second wife apparently failed and Wilson shot and killed himself.

IRISH FAMINE CAUSING PEOPLE TO "SEE BLACK"

Depressing Picture of Conditions in Erin Told by Leader

Belfast, March 28.—(By The Associated Press)—A depressing picture of conditions in County Clare was drawn by Colonel G. O. Westropp, Irish Farmers' Union leader, at a conference here last night. The cattle were dying by wholesale, he declared, 436 head valued at ten pounds each having succumbed in two months in one district and all the sheep were already dead with no live stock left in two large town lands. In two other town lands, the people had lost 80 percent of their livestock. They were living on what they could find, eating even dried leaves. The traveler could not journey along the roads, but was forced to seek refuge in three funeral parlors. "The people are seeing black," the colonel said, "tomorrow they may see red, and then God help Ireland."

Dispatches received in the United States late in January, said a poor harvest, including the failure of the potato crop, and the lack of meat were causing general distress in the west of Ireland. Cattle and sheep were said to be suffering because of the extraordinarily wet season, excessive rains and floods washing away the turf.

Members of the Free State government issued statements saying talk of a famine was unjustified but admitting that the widespread distress in the western counties was abnormal.

Advertising Agency is Suing Democratic Com.

By Associated Press Leased Wire. New York, Mar. 28.—L. A. Van Patten, whose advertising agency is involved in a wrangle with the democratic national committee over an advertising deal during the presidential campaign in 1924, has filed suit for a $50,000 cash advance for campaign advertising last fall and to return any amounts due.

The democratic national committee refused suit to compel Van Patten to account for the recovery of $5,000 to the 1924 season does not expire until fall, but this season's achievements have brought forth such enthusiasm and so many requests for permission to attend the annual convention, that it has been agreed to accept new members during the week beginning Monday, with dues payable not later than Sept. 15. New members can then attend the annual convention of officers, which takes place the last week in April. Civic Music Assn. headquarters will be maintained at the Chamber of Commerce office for the week, and anyone desiring to join may telephone one's application there, or call in person and be welcomed by members of the committee.

Rev. H. H. Truitt will occupy the pulpit at the church Sunday morning and Rev. W. S. Whitsett will preach in the evening.

Shepherd Case to be Subject for a Sermon

Reverend Prentiss Hovey case of Presbyterian church will speak Sunday evening on "The Shepherd Case." There is no doubt that there is "something behind the scenes," a colored gentleman secured behind the "wood pile" in connection with the case. There are also some very real lessons that people, especially young people, can learn from it. Of these especially the Dixon pastor will speak.

ALLEGED AID IN 'TYPHOID' DEATH ACCUSED BY ATTY.

Shepherd's Attorney is Sponsor of Affidavit Making Such Charge

Chicago, Mar. 28.—Charges of black-mail and of intimidation and bribery were exchanged today as counsel for William D. Shepherd, charged with murder, renewed the fight for bail for the accused. In an affidavit in support of a motion that Judge Hopkins reconsider his denial of bail, it was charged that the confessions of C. C. Falman that he taught Shepherd how to kill Shepherd's ward, William Nelson McClintock, with typhoid germs, was obtained by a blackmail scheme.

The defense first called on the court to give Shepherd his protection, after which the confessions of C. C. Falman that he taught Shepherd how to kill Shepherd's ward, William Nelson McClintock, with typhoid germs, was obtained by a blackmail scheme. The defense first called on the court to give Shepherd his protection, after which the confessions of C. C. Falman that he taught Shepherd how to kill Shepherd's ward, William Nelson McClintock, with typhoid germs, was obtained by a blackmail scheme.

To Protect Witnesses. Assistant State's Attorney Gorman stated to the court that it was true that Clark and his wife were held and declared that all witnesses against Shepherd, including the confession of C. C. Falman, were being taken into custody for their own protection as was Clark.

Clark was represented in the affidavit as having told Attorney Stewart that Falman once had operated illegally on a woman who was being arrested, but that Falman had caused him to make his confession, accusing Shepherd.

Judge Hopkins postponed hearing on the defense motion until Tuesday when the new bail fight by Shepherd's counsel will be pressed in court.

Chicago, Mar. 28.—(By The Associated Press)—An affidavit charging that C. C. Falman, head of the National University of Science, whose confession has been made the principal evidence against Shepherd, was charged with murder, once operated illegally upon a woman in his science school and that the woman died, was taken into criminal court today by Shepherd's counsel.

The affidavit sworn to by William S. Stewart, attorney for Shepherd, who is fighting to have the court reconsider its decision denying Shepherd freedom on bail, further charged that the body was disposed of by turning it over to a laboratory.

The affidavit set forth that according to Falman's statement, for Shepherd, who is fighting to have the court reconsider its decision denying Shepherd freedom on bail, further charged that the body was disposed of by turning it over to a laboratory.

Further, the affidavit professed that he had information and belief that John Sharbaro, assistant state's attorney, had promised Falman, who was indicted with Shepherd but who had been held in a hotel by the state's attorney's men and has not yet been arrested, that if he selected or not in jail, and that the school would not be interfered with.

Clark, one of the first witnesses in the inquiry that led to the indictment of Shepherd, was questioned by State's Attorneys early today on information that he had been offered $5,000 to leave the city. Detectives were sent out to bring in also for questioning, the head of a detective agency who was said to have made the offer.

"Never Had Any Germs." A declaration that Charles C. Falman, jointly indicted with William D. Shepherd, after confessing he had given typhoid germs to the lawyer, never had any germ cultures in his school, was made by Mrs. Luella Rabeck, who said she was formerly secretary of the school. She has obtained a writ of habeas corpus for the recovery of $5,000 in damages she said would have a bearing on the Shepherd case. The documents, she said, would clear Shepherd of the charges against him.

Another assertion that Falman's testimony would be discredited came from William S. Stewart, Shepherd's attorney, who served notice that he would apply for a rehearing on his motion denied Wednesday, to have Shepherd released on bail pending trial.

Search for any poison traces in the bodies of Mrs. Emma Nelson McClintock, jointly indicted with William D. Shepherd, continued today. A complete chemical analysis of the organs of the bodies will take at least a month.

Gould Estate Decreased Over Two Million in '24

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Toms River, N. J., Mar. 28.—The estate of the late George J. Gould decreased more than $2,000,000 last year, according to an accounting filed today with Surrogate Fogt. This total of the estate at the close of 1924 was fixed at $14,203,696.76.

Heavier administration expenses and decline in bond values were given as the cause of the decrease.

LIFE—
Life, like a romping schoolboy, full of glee,
Doth bear us on his shoulders for a time;
There is no path too steep for him to climb.
With strong, lithe limbs, as agile and as free,
As some young roe, he speeds by vale and sea.
By flowery mead, by mountain-peak sublime,
And all the world seems motion set to rhyme.
Till, tired out, he cries, "Now carry me!"
In vain we murmur, "Come," Life says "Fairplay."
And seizes on us. God! He goods us day.
He does not let us sit down all the day.
At each new step we feel the burden grow.
Till our bent backs seem breaking as we go.
Waiting for Death to meet us on the way.

Palmyra Mutual Aid Society Meeting

The Palmyra Mutual Aid Society met in an all-day meeting, Wednesday, in the basement of the Sugar Grove church.

A comforter was tied which will be sent to aid some needy family in the storm area of southern Illinois. It was voted, to give another five dollars toward the relief of the tornado sufferers.

"Pies" was the subject for discussion at the round table in the afternoon and a number of recipes for new and delicious pies, were given.

The next meeting will be held in two weeks, April 8th, with Mrs. Mark Williams as hostess.

MEN MORE ARSENAL-MINDED THAN WOMEN

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, March 28.—Men are more absent-minded than women and most of the articles left behind in taxicabs are left behind by male passengers, according to C. W. Gray, general manager of Chicago's largest taxicab company.

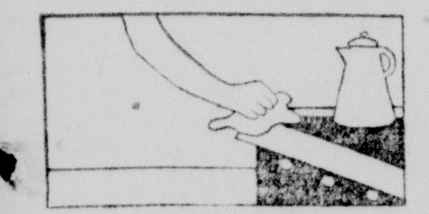

Married women, he said, especially mothers, are more forgetful than those who are unmarried. He said company lost and found records show. Cases of business cards, pre-occupation in men and the cares of the home cause mothers to forget.

During the first two months of 1925, more than 3,000 articles valued in excess of $20,000 were left in the company taxicabs. Cash found amounted to $2,300. Included in articles found were 172 umbrellas, 97 brief cases, 115 books, 36 pairs of glasses, 23 pipes, 26 overcoats, 10 hats and more than 100 purses and hand bags.

Among unclaimed articles were a glass eye and a large floor lamp.

HOUSEHOLD SUBSTITUTIONS—Will Clean Range.

If the bright parts of the kitchen same turn black from heat, rub with a cloth dipped in vinegar.

Fine Dessert.
Oranges, bananas and marshmallows cut into small pieces and sprinkled with powdered sugar make a very easily digested dessert.

Shelling Peas.
Peas should not be shelled until you wish to cook them. They become quite tough if exposed to the air for any length of time.

Best for Salads.
If the beaten eggs are thoroughly stirred into cold vinegar and the mixture is then boiled, salad dressing will never curdle.

Earthenware Dishes.
When earthenware cooking dishes are burnt, a little rough cooking salt or ashes rubbed on the surface will be found effective.

To Clean Enamel.
When enamel ware becomes discolored clean it with a paste made of salt and vinegar.

Menus for a Family

Breakfast:
Stewed rhubarb, bacon sandwiches, nut rolls, milk, coffee.
Luncheon:
Honey mold with fish and eggs, onion sandwiches, ginger snaps, canned peaches, milk, tea.
Dinner:
Tomato bouillon, mock sausages, steamed rice, creamed spinach floating island, sponge cake, graham rolls, milk, coffee.

Nut Rolls.
One yeast cake, 1/4 cup lukewarm water, 1 cup milk, flour, 1/4 cup granulated sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons softened butter, 4 tablespoons brown sugar, 1/2 cup finely chopped nuts, 4 tablespoons melted butter.
Scald milk. Dissolve yeast cake in lukewarm water. When milk is lukewarm add yeast cake and 1/4 cups flour. Beat well and let rise in a warm place until light. Add granulated sugar, egg well beaten, salt and melted butter. Beat well and add flour to knead. Knead until elastic to the touch and let rise in a warm place until double its bulk.
Roll in a long strip to about 1/2 inch thickness, spread with softened butter, sprinkle with sugar and nuts and roll up like a jelly roll. Cut in inch slices and place on a buttered pan, cut side down. Let rise again and bake twenty-five minutes in a hot oven.

Ginger Snaps.
One cup light brown sugar, 1 cup butter, 1 cup molasses, 1 egg, 1 table-spoon vinegar, 1/2 table-spoon ginger, 1 teaspoon soda, 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon, flour to make a soft dough to roll.
Cream butter and sugar and add molasses in which soda has been dissolved. Add egg well beaten. Add 1 cup flour. Add vinegar and spices. Mix thoroughly and add flour to make a soft dough. Roll on a floured molding board as thinly as possible. Cut with a cookie cutter and dip in flour and bake on an oiled and floured cookie sheet in a moderate oven.

To Adopt Legislative Program at Meeting

Decatur—Women's clubs of Illinois will examine the work of the general assembly and will adopt a legislative program of their own at the state convention of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, which meets here May 19 to 22.

Mrs. John T. Mason, chairman of the legislative department of the state organization, will review the work of the assembly and pending bills for the convention, after which the women will endorse such bills as meet with their approval and possibly suggest other bills.

Many noted speakers will appear on the program, which will devote much attention to child welfare, public health, community and social conditions and conservation.

The convention will also hear several speakers and committee reports on art and literary projects, and particularly on community appreciation of these subjects.

A number of dinners, receptions and lunches have been arranged by the delegates.

C. C. Circle Had Pleasant Meeting

The members of the C. C. Circle of the Christian church were entertained by Mrs. Herbert Hoon, at her home on Thursday evening with Mrs. Ward Hall, assisting.

Miss Clara Owen Bardwell is spending the weekend with Miss Wilda Bent in Morrison.

Children's Party Great Success

The Elks Junior party held last week was an unqualified success and the parties held yesterday afternoon and evening for the younger children of Elks were also great successes and proved most enjoyable.

In the afternoon the tiny tots and children to the age of about 6 years were entertained and in the evening youngsters from school age to about 12 years were entertained.

In the afternoon it was estimated that there were approximately fifty-eight children present and in the evening 150.

Decorations in springtime spirit and colors, yellow and green and white and Easter favors and motifs combined in the artistic results obtained. In the afternoon, the baskets and favors were in yellow and in the evening green baskets alternated with the yellow.

The grand march, both afternoon and evening were features, the march being led in the afternoon by Jane Hofer and Bobby Miller, and in the evening by Lillian Covert and Louis Pitcher, Jr. As the youngsters started to march they were given hats and at the finish were presented with favors, with the younger ones, mostly of the noise making variety, and with the older ones, fans for the girls and whistles for the boys.

Miss Frances Campbell's class of fancy dancers entertained both afternoon and evening. Miss Alice Powell accompanying at the piano in the afternoon and Miss Mary Hintz in the evening.

A number of kiddie car races, and various games were played in the afternoon and Mrs. Charles Bishop played for dancing, while in the evening Mrs. Bishop piano, and Neil Coe, saxophone, played for the girls and boys to trip the light fantastic.

As the youngsters were seated at the beautifully decorated tables for refreshments in the afternoon, balloons floated above their places and were afterward given the small guests much to their delight. Yellow candy baskets, candy chickens with Easter eggs, green nests, yellow candles, and flowers, yellow and white cake, white ice cream adorned with an Easter egg in yellow, all carried out the pretty Easter idea.

During the evening the yellow basket favors were alternated with the green ones and more green was used in the decorating. The fans as favors for the girls, and whistles and other noise makers for the boys were much in favor with the youngsters.

It is safe to say that never have the children had a happier afternoon and evening and they were a tired and contented company of youngsters when all was over.

To Mrs. I. B. Hofer, chairman of the committee of ladies, in charge, and her assistants, belongs the credit for the success of the affair.

Those on the committee with Mrs. Hofer, were: Mrs. Arthur Shuck, Mrs. Arthur Nielsen, Mrs. Guy Merri-man, Mrs. L. Miller, Mrs. Lee Matthias, Mrs. A. Resek, Mrs. Harry Quick, Mrs. Peter Moersbacher, Mrs. Geo. Shaw, Mrs. Stuart Netz, Mrs. F. Conkley, Mrs. E. Crawford, Mrs. R. Warner, Mrs. C. Bishop, Mesdames Worthington, Brington, Barton, Canill.

If He were not a malefactor we would have not delivered Him up. John xviii. 30.

People
Crucify Him! Crucify Him! John xix. 15.

Witnesses
This fellow said, I am able to destroy the temple of God and to build it in three days. Matthew xxvi. 61.

People
Crucify Him! Crucify Him! Ye have heard the blasphemy. Matthew xxvi. 65.

Priests
We found this fellow perverting the nation and forbidding to give tribute unto Caesar. Luke xxiii. 2.

People
Crucify Him! Crucify Him! We have no King but Caesar. John xix. 15.

Recitative
And Pilate said unto him, what evil hath He done? Matthew xxvii. 17.

But ye have a custom that I should release one unto you at the Passover. John xviii. 29.

Whom will ye that I release, Barabbas, or Jesus which is called Christ. Matthew xxvii. 17.

People
Not this man but Barabbas. John xviii. 40.

Away with him! Crucify Him! John xix. 15.

His blood be on us and our children. Matthew xxvii. 25.

THE APPEAL FOR GOD'S INTERPOSITION

O Lord God to whom vengeance belongeth, O God to whom vengeance belongeth, show Thyself. How long shall the wicked, how long shall the wicked triumph? Psalm lxxix. 1, 3.

Up Lord, why sleepest Thou? Psalm xlv. 25.

PATIENCE Solo and Chorus

God is a righteous Judge, strong and patient; and God is provoked every day. Psalm vii. 12.

God sent not His Son to condemn the world, but that the world through Him might be saved. John iii. 17.

THE MOCKERY ON CALVARY

Chorus
Holy Lips of prophecy, divinely sealed,
Trace the hidden mystery, in Christ revealed.

THE FORESHADOWING
Solo
I was a derision to all my people, and their song all the day. Lamentations iii. 14.

They have whet their tongues like swords, and shoot out their arrows, even bitter words. Psalms lxxix. 2.

Lord, Thou hast seen my wrong; judge Thou my cause. Lamentations iii. 59.

Chorus
What is that that He saith? We cannot tell what He saith. John xvi. 33.

March and Chorus of Roman Soldiers
Hail, King of the Jews! Matthew xxvii. 29.

All kings shall fall down before Him, all nations shall do Him service. Psalm lxxviii. 11.

Recitative
And they that passed by rallied on Him, wagging their heads, and saying:

People
Aha! Thou that destroyest the temple, and buildest it in three days, save Thyself. If Thou be the King of Israel, come down from the cross. Mark xv. 29-30.

An Angel.
The Lord's throne is in heaven. Psalm xl. 4.

His eyes behold, His eyelids try the children of men. Psalm xl. 5.

Solo
O hear ye this all ye people; give ear all ye inhabitants of the world. Psalm xlix. 1.

The Lord hath sworn, surely I will never forget any of your works. Amos viii. 7.

The Solemn Warning
O consider this ye that forget God, lest He tear you in pieces, and there be none to deliver. Psalm i. 22.

For He cometh to judge the earth, and with righteousness to judge the world, and the people with His truth. Psalm xcvi. 13.

INTELLIGENT NEWSPAPER USE.

A speaker before the convention of the American Association of Teachers of Journalism declares that the newspapers are handicapped in wielding their full and best influence in national life today because the American public, "while buying millions of newspapers, does not read the important things in them."

"It is plain," he says, "that the person who reads only the headlines, the sports page, the serial fiction, the comics, is not making intelligent use of the newspaper nor encouraging publication of worth-while newspapers."

The remedy this speaker suggests is to have newspaper reading taught in high schools and colleges.

Undoubtedly it is a good suggestion, but it not entirely new. Although newspaper reading does not have a separate teacher or a special place in the school course, it is often used effectively by teachers of English, of civics and political science, history and perhaps some other subjects. It is not at all unusual in many schools for teachers to ask pupils to look up something in the newspapers, to bring in newspaper clippings bearing on a certain point, to be able to report on important current events, and so on.

Perhaps newspapers are skimmed more superficial today than formerly, but they are at the same time read more intelligently than formerly, because the whole group of newspaper readers includes so much larger a portion of the public than ever before.

POLITICAL REFORM.

A political revival is undertaken by the National American Civic Federation. It has formed a nonpartisan department of politics, under the leadership of Elihu Root and Alton B. Parker, and is starting in to promote more general voting and genuine party government.

It is said that 30,000,000 qualified American voters failed to vote in the 1924 election. This is bad enough in itself. It is less important how many citizens vote than how intelligently they vote; yet numbers matter because they indicate the interest taken in public affairs. Without such interest, widespread and regularly registered good government is not to be expected.

Of more immediate interest to most citizens is the effort for a more definite expression of our traditional two-party system than we have had in recent years. There is fear that our system of government would be imperilled by "the group or many-party system" common in Europe. As our historic parties break up or lose their effectiveness, there develops a sort of legislative and administrative paralysis. Hide-bound partisanship and absolute regularity are bad, but perhaps this disintegration is worse. If government is to be responsible and efficient, there must be party organization that means something.

The difficulty is that the parties themselves seem to mean less than they used to. When they come again to stand for two sets of definite and vital issues, we may have the old coherence and efficiency again.

Perhaps strong leadership would create such issues, and then the rank and file would fall in and march along.

TRAFFIC.

Congestion of traffic in New York streets causes a loss estimated as high as 100 million dollars a year. For instance, when a truck is idle in a traffic jam, it costs the owner six cents a minute in the form of unproductive investment, etc.

Every autoist and pedestrian has similar costly delay. It is part of the price we pay for advantages of the motorcar. Nature always exacts her price. And in solving one problem we usually create several new ones.

LIFE.

Nothing in nature is more wonderful than the way life struggles to survive and adapts itself to environment. In the Olympic mountains, scientists find worms that live only in ice. These worms cannot stand the heat of even a human hand.

It may be so on distant heavenly bodies such as the planets. Conditions out there might not support earthly life, yet would be ideal for other life forms.

"DRUGS."

The use of medicine is on the wane. But this doesn't worry the country's 49,000 druggists, for the old-time drug store has evolved into a "general store" with a bewildering line of ice cream, quick lunches, mah jongg, electric toasters, toys, etc.

These 49,000 stores do a total business of 800 million dollars a year, or an average of about $16,300 apiece.

LIFE.

A hoard of $4000 is discovered in the hovel of a hermit who died recently near Frostburg, Md. This attracts attention, for people consider hoarders "queer."

If he had invested his $4000 in an auto that he couldn't really afford, he would have been accepted as normal.

The Swiss are receiving deserved praise for their decision to pay us six million dollars they owe us. There are those who cite this as an example for France to emulate, but they miss the whole point. Morally, the two cases are identical. But the moral aspect is the whole of the Swiss question, and only a part of the French one.

Switzerland ought to pay. There fore, Switzerland will pay.

France ought to pay. Therefore, let us look into the remainder of the question.

They have school board quarrels in China, too. But disgruntled American teachers could scarcely resort to such direct action as the hundred Tientsin professors who called on the minister of education and soundly caned him.

Louisiana practice on their pupils had made them experts on the job. Perhaps the "caning" could better be directed upward than downward in a good many places.

Take newspapers, for instance. How many of them could be better if the proprietor, instead of the cub reporter, could be "caned"?

The California and Missouri authorities were already after their diabolical mills, and now a sensational murder case has aroused the Illinois authorities. So perhaps something will be done.

These factories of fake medical credentials are nothing less than centers of licensed murder.

No man seeks his certificate from them unless he is too ignorant to get it elsewhere. And in medicine, ignorance is the highest crime.

Crookedness may be worse in a lawyer, or dishonesty in a merchant, but in medicine, knowledge outranks even character.

Turning loose the unqualified, to care for human ills which they do not understand and cannot even recognize, is vending poison under false labels.

The ignorant practitioner is both a fraud and a menace to life. He is bad enough, even if he happens to hit the right treatment, or in those more numerous cases which lead to get well without treatment.

More often, he prescribes what is good for one condition for a patient suffering from another, or even his "business" treatment delays real care until too late.

Those who, for money, turn loose such menaces on the community are worse than the poisoners of streams and wells, whom even war will not tolerate.

Now that one of them has been caught in what looks like retail murder, it is to be hoped that the attention aroused will enable something to be done about the wholesale murders of the entire class, too.

DISGRACE NOT MEXICO'S—IT OURS

Mexico agrees to a drug treaty with the United States, for the better guarding against the smuggling of narcotics.

Doubtless Mexico would gladly agree to a liquor and gambling treaty also, if it would put an end to the wild towns just across the border, from which many Americans get their chief impression of Mexico.

For Mexico is frankly ashamed of these moral pest-holes. America should be more ashamed.

These border towns, one inch outside of American laws, and a thousand miles away from effective Mexican administration, are panders, not to Mexico, but to American vice.

Sure enough he was scrubbing his monkey, and dear knows, I'm sure he needed it.

"Where are we going now?" asked Nick.

The March Hare considered a minute. "I'm not sure," he said "whether it is more important to get the Hurdy Gurdy Man started, and Jacko, his monkey, or to get after the Ice-Cream-Conc Man. Spring doesn't start, really, until both of them are out."

"Oh, let's hunt up the Hurdy Gurdy Man first," cried Nancy.

"Very well," said the March Hare. "The Hurdy Gurdy Man it is."

So the Twins got on the March Hare's quilling back and away he went like the wind.

They passed the Jolly Rag Man driving his old horse slowly along and singing loudly through his nose, "Raa-a-a-a! Old iron! Rubber-boots—paper—and shoes! Raa-a-a-a! Old iron!"

He waved at them as they passed.

Next they passed the Scissors Grinder with his grindstone strapped to his back. "Scissors to grind!" he kept calling.

But people were so busy opening their doors and rushing out to get their dull scissors and knives sharpened, that he never even saw the three travelers speeding on their way.

They passed the Umbrella Mender next. "It's a good thing he's getting about his business," remarked the hare. "It is certainly clouding up to rain."

And then they came to the Hurdy Gurdy Man's house.

"Come in," said he when they knocked.

"How do do," he grinned. "You must excuse me. I give Jacko a bath."

Sure enough he was scrubbing his monkey, and dear knows, I'm sure he needed it—the monkey did. There lay his little bright red coat and cap all ready to put on. And even a brand new tin cup was waiting to be filled with pennies.

"Tomorrow I go out and play da 'Bambalina' and 'No Bananas,'" said the Hurdy Gurdy Man. "I make da kids dance and sing."

The March Hare looked worried. "It seems to me, Mister Hurdy Gurdy Man," said he, "that there are newer times this year. A Hurdy Gurdy Man must be up to date. You'll have to learn 'Follow the Swallow' and 'You for Two' and 'The Indian Love Call' and a lot of others."

"You don't say," exclaimed the Hurdy Gurdy Man. "Da day after tomorrow I start then. It takes me one day to learn."

"That will do," said the March Hare rising. "Good-bye, sir, and good luck."

"My," said Nick when they had left. "It's a good thing we went isn't it? Everyone has to keep in style with times same as hats, doesn't he?"

"I should say so," remarked the hare. "It seems a pity, too. Some times are so pretty we never get tired of them. It's queer, too, how they keep thinking up new ones. You think that every single tune in the world has been made up—that there isn't half a chance for another."

And along comes somebody with a whole haul of new songs. Then you have to go to a lot of trouble to learn them, too! But that's the way of the world and it's good for our brains."

"There's one tune I hope he won't play this year," added the hare.

"What?" asked the Twins together.

"Mister Gallagher," sighed the March Hare wearily.

Fellowship of Prayer

Daily Lenten Bible reading and meditation prepared for Commission on Evangelism of Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

SATURDAY Repentance

Read Lk. 13:1-9. Text: 13:5. I tell you, Nay; but except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish.

MEDITATION — The question continually comes to our minds: Why are not evil deeds punished? Why do they prosper when there is no sign for repentance? God's ways for others we need not know. We are to be concerned with our own lives. The mercy of the Lord is long suffering but the fruit of disobedience will surely ripen. Repentance is a matter of desire and will. If we desire the grace with all our hearts and put forth our will to turn resolutely from all selfishness and sin and hold fast to the faith we shall have the assistance of God's grace. God is waiting to help every man who truly repents.

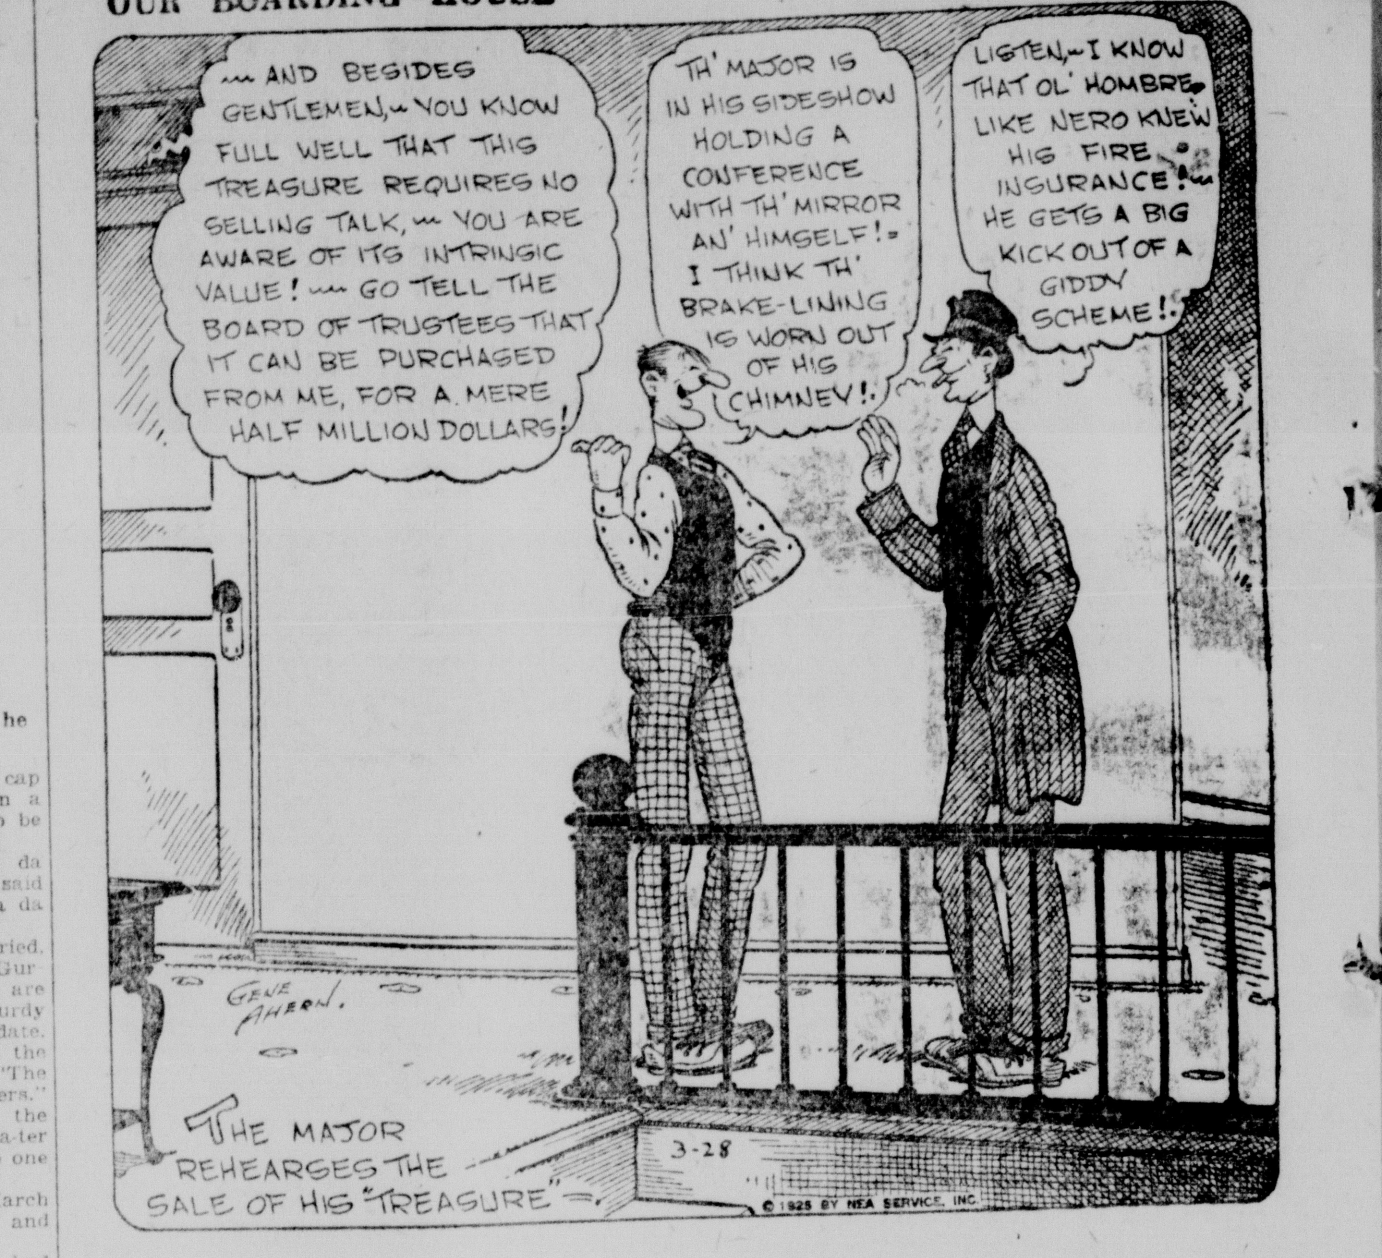

"God is wide awake. Nothing is hid from his sight. There is no uncorrected error that can take him by surprise. He is wide awake on the far off furrow. He is wide awake on the field of common labor where some young disciple finds it hard to keep clean hands while he earns his daily bread."

PRAYER—Our heavenly Father, keep us ever in mind of thy laws. May they be as a shield against temptations. Then shall we seek repentance and labor earnestly that all thy wandering children may find the way back to thy heart of love. Amen.

Good Thoughts for Good People

Let us remember that love is the only liberator, the only destroyer of mankind's bondage. We have no other means. We need no other; and we have always before us for inspiration and encouragement the example of Christ Jesus, who withstood evil, and conquered it even in its most virulent form.—The Christian Science Journal.

BAREE, SON OF KAZAN

by James Oliver Curwood
A LOVE EPIC OF THE FAR NORTH

Copyright, 1917, by Doubleday, Page & Co.
"BAREE, SON OF KAZAN," a Vitaphone Picture, With Wolf, the War Dog, is an Adaptation of This Story

SYNOPSIS

McTaggart, the factor, lured Pierrot, the trapper, away from his cabin and, in his absence, went there himself, shot Baree, the wolf-dog, then gathered Nepeese, the trapper's daughter, in his arms. The girl was fighting desperately to free herself when Pierrot returned. Instantly the two men squared off and a terrific life and death struggle followed. Pierrot got the intruder on the floor and was choking him when McTaggart, twice pulling the trigger of his revolver as he lay, killed the girl's father.

CHAPTER XXI—Continued

What she saw in the Factor's face dragged her out of the numbness of her grief back to the abyss of her own peril. He was standing over her. In his face there was no pity, nothing of horror at what he had done—only an insane exultation as he looked—not at Pierrot's dead body, but at her. He put out a hand, and it rested on her head. She felt his thick fingers crumpling her hair, and his eyes blazed like embers of fire behind watery films. She struggled to rise, but with his hands at her hair he held her down.

"Great God!" she breathed. She uttered no other words, no plea for mercy, no other sound but a dry, hopeless sob. In that moment neither of them heard or saw Baree. Twice in crossing the cabin his hind-quarters had sagged to the floor. Now he was close to McTaggart. He wanted to give a single lunge to the man-brute's back and snap his thick neck as he would have broken a caribou bone. But he had no strength. He was still partially paralyzed from his fore-shoulder back. But his jaws were like iron, and they closed savagely on McTaggart's leg.

"She turned and faced McTaggart."

With a yell of pain the Factor released his hold on the Willow, and she staggered to her feet. For a precious half minute she was free, and as the Factor kicked and struck to loose Baree's hold, she ran to the cabin door and out into the day. The cold air struck her face; it filled her lungs with new strength, and without thought of where hope might lie she ran through the snow into the forest. McTaggart appeared at the door just in time to see her disappear. His leg was torn where Baree had fastened his fangs, but he felt no pain as he ran in pursuit of the girl. She could not go far. An exultant cry, inhuman as the cry of a beast, came in a great burst from his gaping mouth as he saw that she was staggering weakly as she fled. He was halfway to the edge of the forest when Baree dragged himself over the threshold. His jaws were bleeding where McTaggart had kicked him again and again before his fangs gave way. Halfway between his ears was a seared spot, as if a red-hot poker had been laid there for an instant. This was where McTaggart's bullet had gone. A quarter of an inch deeper, and it would have meant death. As it was, it had been like the blow of a heavy club, paralyzing his senses and sending him limp and unconscious against the wall. He could move on his feet now without falling, and slowly he followed in the tracks of the man and the girl.

As she ran, Nepeese's mind came all at once clear and reasoning. She turned into the narrow trail over which McTaggart had followed her once before, but just before reaching the chasm, she swung sharply to the right. She could see McTaggart. He was not running fast, but was gaining steadily, as if enjoying the sight of her helplessness, as he had enjoyed it another day that day. Two hundred yards below the deep pool into which she had pushed the Factor—just beyond the shallows out of which he had dragged himself to safety—was the beginning of Bule Feather's Gorge. An appalling thing was shaping itself in her mind as she ran to it—a thing that with each gasping breath she drew became more and more a great and glorious hope. At last she reached it and looked down. And as she looked, there whispered up out of her soul and trembled on her lips the swan-song of her mother's people.

Our Fathers—come!
Come from out of the valley
Guide us—for to-day we die,
And the winds whisper of death!

She raised her arms. Against the white wilderness beyond the chasm she stood tall and slim. Fifty yards behind her the Factor from Lac Bain stopped suddenly in his tracks. "Ah," he mumbled. "Is she not wonderful!" And behind McTaggart, coming faster and faster, was Baree.

Again the Willow looked down. She was at the edge, for she had no fear in this hour. Many times she had clung to Pierrot's hand as she looked over. Down there no one could fall and live. Fifty feet below her the water which never froze was smashing itself into froth among the rocks. It was deep and black and terrible, for between the narrow rock walls the sun did not reach it. The roar of it filled the Willow's ears.

She turned and faced McTaggart. Even then he did not guess, but came toward her again, his arms stretched out ahead of him. Fifty yards! It was not much, and shortening swiftly.

Once more the Willow's lips moved. After all, it is the mother soul that gives us faith to meet eternity—and it was to the spirit of her mother that the Willow called in the hour of death. With the call on her lips she plunged into the abyss, her wind-whipped hair clinging to her in a glistening shroud.

CHAPTER XXII

A moment later the Factor from Lac Bain stood at the edge of the chasm. His voice had called out in a hoarse bellow—a wild cry of disbelief and horror that had formed the Willow's name as she disappeared. He looked down, clutching his huge red hands and staring in ghastly suspense at the boiling water and black rocks far below. There was nothing there now—no sign of her, no last flash of her pale face and streaming hair in the white foam. And she had done that—to save herself from him!

The soul of the man-beast turned sick within him, so sick that he staggered back, his vision blinded and his legs tottering under him. He had killed Pierrot, and it had been a triumph, all his life he had played the part of the brute with a stoicism and cruelty that had known no shock—nothing like this that overwhelmed him now, numbing him to the marrow of his bones until he stood like one paralyzed. He did not see Baree. He did not hear the dog's whining cries at the edge of the chasm. For a few moments the world turned black for him; and then, dragging himself out of his stupor, he ran frantically along the edge of the gorge, looking down wherever his eyes could reach the water, striving for a glimpse of her. At last it grew too deep. There was no hope. She was gone—and she had faced that to escape him!

He mumbled that fact over and over again, stupidly, thickly, as though his brain could grasp nothing beyond it. She was dead. And Pierrot was dead. And he, in a few minutes, had accomplished it all.

He turned back toward the cabin—not by the trail over which he had pursued Nepeese, but straight through the thick bush. Great flakes of snow had begun to fall. He looked at the sky, where banks of dark clouds were rolling up from the south and east. The sun went out. Soon there would be a storm—a heavy snowstorm. The big flakes falling on his naked hands and face set his mind to work. It was lucky for him, this storm. It would cover everything—the fresh trails, even the grave he would dig for Pierrot.

It does not take such a man as the Factor long to recover from a moral concussion. By the time he came in sight of the cabin his mind was again at work on physical things—on the necessities of the situation. The appalling thing, after all, was not that both Pierrot and Nepeese were dead, but that his dream was shattered. It was not that Nepeese was dead, but that he had lost her. This was his vital disappointment. The other thing—his crime—it was easy to cover.

The WELL DRESSED MAN By BEAUNASH

Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

Your Sport Shirt

Is the modest shirt, hidden for years under coat and waistcoat, in a way to join those who "do good by stealth and blush to find it fame?" Certainly, it is emerging from its retirement as a garment which enveloped, but did not embellish. For years, the shirt has only been the background in the scenic theme of dress. Today, it is assuming more prominence, as well as more color and character. In golf and sporting shirts this is due to the fact that Americans like to discard their coat and waistcoat when playing, whereas the Scotch and the English feel that it is obligatory, even in the thick of summer, "to perspire like a gentleman". It all depends upon the point of view. No gentleman likes to be caught unawares, especially when women are looking on, and the spectacle of a shirt-sleeved golfer is not a very agreeable one.

The type of sport shirt, illustrated here, is now a familiar sight on many links. The attached soft collar, deep-pointed, looks smart, yet leaves the neck free. The left breast pocket with buttoned flap is a no end handy to accommodate such personal trifles as every golfer likes to carry along. The round, barreled wrist cuffs, fastening snugly, though not tightly, with one or two buttons are a far step in advance of the old wide cuffs that had a disconcerting trick of feeling cumbersome and getting in the way.

For the sake of better portrayal of the style details, the shirt shown here is in a solid color, but you may also select any fancy pattern that you have a fancy for, from madras to flannel. A style which has won quite a few admirers during the last few years is the shirt made in one continuous garment with the drawers. Thus, the latter cannot ride up, but, like a discreet servant or a tactful poor relation, knows its place and keeps it. This shirt is admirable for golf and unsurpassed for tennis.

Many men try to make a town or business shirt serve also for the sports, a great mistake. It is like playing golf in a lounge suit or driving an automobile in a derby hat. To feel at ease, you must be conscious that you are correctly turned out; that your clothes are appropriate to time, place and circumstance; that, even though your game may be criticised, your get-up cannot be. Own enough shirts, for town and country, for frequent changing, and keep the two types strictly apart.

The SKELETON FINGER

BEGIN HERE TODAY

NORMAN SLATER, in love with Kathleen Glenister, searches for her on a motorcycle, after she had been tricked to visit a lonely spot by—

SIR DUDLEY, who wishes to marry her to allay suspicion that he is the murderer of her brother, James Glenister. Slater is made prisoner by Sir Dudley's agent, when—

JAMES WRAGGE, detective, assigned to the case, begins a search for the two young lovers—

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XX
The Whispering Gallery

INSPECTOR WRAGGE followed the old butler through the green baize door on the tip-toe of expectation. Here at last was a man who for years had lived at the very heart of the happenings which led up to the Beechwood mystery and who seemed to want to tell him things. The pantry proved to be a cosy and secluded den, far removed from the clatter of the kitchen, and evidently a sanctum into which minor satellites of the household would not dare to intrude.

Hinkley produced a bottle of port and with trembling fingers filled two glasses.

"I'm all shaken up, sir," he said. "I heard you tell the master that Miss Kathleen and Captain Slater have eloped—but it can't be true. There was no need for them to run away together. Both of age and Lady Marbles set on the match. There's something behind it all."

Wragge felt that it would be good policy to give confidence for confidence. "I agree with you," he said. "I don't mind telling you that for the moment I am more concerned with Miss Kathleen Glenister's safety than with tracking her brother's murderer. What exactly do you apprehend has befallen her, Mr. Hinkley?"

"God knows," was the reply. "I don't trust the master since our young lady turned against him over that ghastly finger, sweet as he used to be on her. He was away all yesterday till late at night, and how often again after breakfast this morning. He had only just come in when you called."

"See here, Mr. Hinkley, all this is very serious," the inspector said in his most seductive tone. "And the gravity has been increased by the arrival of the lady you admitted as I was leaving the library. I have reason to believe that she is culpably implicated in the case."

"No error there, sir," the butler rejoined with quivering hesitancy. "Mrs. Coningsby wants to be Lady Glenister—you can lay to that. It would suit her to rights for the girl the master banked after to meet with foul play."

"You are a colleague to be proud of," Wragge pursued his advantage. "You won't raise any objection if I creep back into the entrance hall and use my ears at the library door?"

The butler's face lit up with genial gleam. "I can do you up with scullery talk," he said. "I'll take you up to the whispering gallery. You can hear every word spoken in the library and see what's going on through the Judas hole. The place was fixed up by the monks hundreds of years ago when this house was a priory. I never told Sir Dudley about it."

Wragge finished his wine and stood up. "Take me there at once," he said.

"If we meet any of the maids you are a plumber, sir," rejoined Hinkley.

But they met no maids as with all due caution they mounted a back staircase, traversed several corridors and so came to a spare bedroom on the front landing. Here the butler did something to the carved mantel-piece and Wragge found himself passing through a suddenly disclosed aperture in the wall to a narrow space that smelt of all the ages.

"There is the Judas hole," said Hinkley, pointing to a pin-prick of light in the darkness of the secret gallery. "I will wait in the bedroom, but I must shut you in or you won't hear anything. Tap when you want to come out."

The panel slid back into place and Wragge at once heard voices in heated altercation.

"I don't believe you," the woman

"I WILL DENOUNCE YOU TO SCOTLAND YARD."

was saying. "You've got the girl somewhere and you are trying to force her to marry you. I warn you here and now, Dudley, that I won't stand it. You have got to marry me or take the consequences."

Wragge's eye was glued to the Judas hole by now. The scene below in the library was clear as if viewed from a stage box, yet he was peering through a perforation in the wall so small that it might have been the puncture of a needle.

"The consequences?" sneered the master of Beechwood. "What consequences can you threaten me with, my dear Ivy?"

She raised one of her clenched fists. "I will denounce you to Scotland Yard," she replied in low, tense tones. "I will repeat to the police the revelations of my brother's diary, showing how you faked the details of George Glenister's death. Simon Trickey shall come back from the grave to accuse you."

Sir Dudley's laugh rang out unafraid. "If Simon is dug up he will make it a good deal harder for you than for me," he retorted. "You are hardly in a position to throw stones from your poor little glass house, Ivy."

Your disclosure to me about that dose of poison would interest Scotland Yard far more than your unconfirmed recollections of Simon's diary."

For a moment the women seemed to be numbed by the baton's counterstroke.

"I don't care," she broke out again. "I'd go to the gallows gladly, if you were to hang, too. And Simon's diary will work that all right."

"But you haven't got Simon's diary—at least so you say," Sir Dudley returned. "Look here, Ivy, why can't we run this on business lines? We are both barred with the same brush, and the tar is thicker on you than on me. Let's call it a deal. I don't believe you were fool enough to burn Simon's record, which would be your only real hold on me. I will give you ten thousand pounds for it."

"You brute—to suppose I want your money," her anger rang out. "You have got to accept my terms or I give you away."

Sir Dudley shrugged and, walking to the table, poured himself a stiff drink.

"If that is your ultimatum, here's mine," he said calmly. "As soon as you start giving me away I shall lay an information against you for doing Simon in."

Wragge's complaint thought that the information was as good as laid already was interrupted by a movement flashed on his vision from a quarter apart from the principal actors in the scene below. It took place outside one of the French windows of the library, and as it focussed through the monkish spy hole on the retina of the detective's eye it gave him the surmise of his life. The whole pile of evidence built up during the last ten minutes fell with a crash.

For standing outside the window, his eyes staring through the plate glass into the library, was Mr. Simon Trickey. He didn't look as if he had been buried very deep, unless it was in the presence of a lion more inflated and his cheek suit hung a little looser than when Wragge had seen him last. But there was no doubt that he was very much alive, and deeply interested in the couple in the library.

Wragge concentrated all his attention on immediate developments. Did the reprobate intend to reveal his presence, and if not what were the chances that he would be able to retreat without being seen? Mrs. Coningsby had her back to the window and unless she turned round the apparition there would remain unnoticed by her so long as it preserved silence. But Sir Dudley had only to raise his eyes from the woman confronting him and he could hardly fail to perceive the malign countenance of his former clerk.

This was exactly what happened. In setting down his empty glass the baronet had to turn slightly to the window, and the detective, watching him like a cat, saw by the gleam of surprised horror that he had recognized Wragge. Wragge could scarcely contain himself. Would Sir Dudley rush forward, fling open the window and demand explanation from the dissolute blackmailer who had so mysteriously risen from the dead, or would he conceal his discovery from the woman who had somehow failed to administer a fatal dose to the man outside?

Five seconds later, by the masterly manner in which he adopted the latter course, Sir Dudley had earned a grudging measure of admiration from the detective. With perfect composure he addressed the lady in the only way possible if he was not to loosen his hold on her by revealing her failure.

"Well," he said, "are you going to face the music, Ivy?"

"I've shot my way down to the garden, Mr. Hinkley," he begged. "There is no more to be said."

The butler gave some brief directions and a minute later Wragge emerged from the gun-room door by which Norman and Kathleen had left the mansion on a certain memorable night. A few steps brought him round the angle of the house and so into view of his quarry. Mr. Simon Trickey was still hovering near the library window, having only withdrawn far enough to be invisible from the interior.

Military Tournament in Grant Park During May

Chicago, March 27.—A military tournament intended to interest civilians of the sixth corps area and the middle west in national defense and the organized reserves, will be held in Grant Park, May 22-24.

It is planned to have sham battles on land and in air, with 1,000 regular army troops, 500 horses, five tanks, 12 airplanes, and a number of dirigibles participating. Detachments of artillery, cavalry, infantry, aircraft, tank corps and chemical branches of the army, national guard and reserves, will maneuver.

The Philippine Islands lead the world in coconut production.

WANTS SHIP COMBINE

Tokyo—A huge combination of all the marine interests of Japan as a means of remedying the prevailing depression in the shipping industry is suggested by Ryoko Asano, managing director of Toyo, Kisei, Kaisha, a large steamship line.

WHY THERE ARE MORE THAN A MILLION

Buick

Four-Wheel Brakes

Of the more than a million Buicks in use today, the last 350,000 built have Buick mechanical 4-wheel brakes. On these 350,000, Buick 4-wheel brakes have proved their increased control and safety by faultless operation through nearly two years, in every extreme of weather.

Nature's Party

Old Mother Nature is planning a party that's hearty. We all know, of course, it's the regular thing for Nature to shine with the coming of spring.

"This nice that we all are invited to come and join in the spread when all things are about. A treat is in store just for you and for me—just a sight that's as pretty as any could be.

The frost-bitten ground is now lending a hand and helping the growing things over the land. The buds that have slept through the long winter days will shortly be opening up in a blaze.

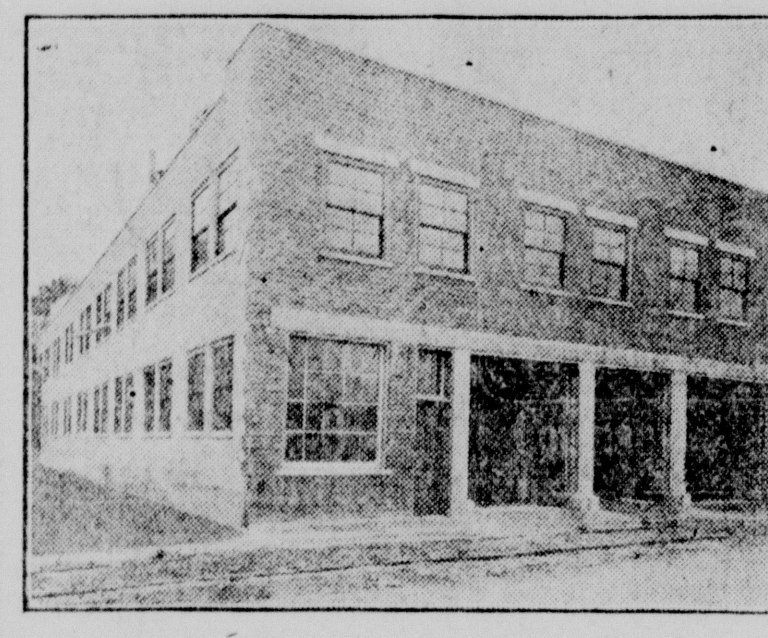

The oak and the maple and all other trees have :laked in the months that brought wind wafts that freeze, but now they are quaking and shaking their doom and shortly we'll find them aglow in full bloom.

"Tis really no wonder that the spirit runs high, and twinkles are seen in Old Sol's shining eye. 'Tis really just natural that birds start to sing. The whole land is cheered by the coming of spring.

WHAZ Troy (380) 8 symphony, glee club, orchestra.
WCBZ Zion (344.6) 8 cornet, violin, saxophone, marimba, vocal.

THE TREMBLING GROOM

London—It's the bridegroom and not the bride who trembles at the marriage ceremony, says Dr. Joseph Walcott, prominent churchman. "Girls write in a firm free hand when signing the marriage register, while the men usually make a mess of it," he says.

The number of boy babies born in the world is estimated to be slightly in excess of the number of girl babies. The ratio varies from 103 to 107 to 100.

Spiders were found by the Mount Everest expedition 400 feet higher than any other vegetable growth. They lived by eating each other.
